The Tillamook County Quilt Guild (TCQG) was started in 1976 and the organizers were instrumental in acquiring and starting the Latimer Quilt and Textile Center. The members today continue the tradition of good works, quality in production, charity and fun. We are involved in contributing gift quilts to the boys in prison at the Oregon Youth Authority, making and donating to the “Quilts of Valor” organization and “Operation Diaper Bag”. The members meet every 3rd Thursday of the month for our official meeting. We work on quilts as raffle items or to be given to charitable causes, have a fun “show and tell” period and share tips, tricks and tools dealing with our craft. Every October we have our Fall two-day retreat where we have fun sewing, eating and snacking together for ourselves, or others, without interruption.

Right now we are starting plans for next October’s quilt show and starting to meet at Latimer Center each Thursday from 9:30 am–1:30 pm to sew, visit, and learn together. We happily welcome and invite anyone interested to join us and hopefully become new members.

President's Message

Hello from the Center,

LaRayne Woodward and I have participated in two quilt shows lately.

Everyone always enjoys the quilts we bring because of their age.

You seldom see the handwork on these old quilt in newer ones.

The comment we got was "It's so-o nice to be among people again!!"

As I have said in the past "I'm giving you a little history lesson in each newsletter this year."

King Cotton

Cotton is the world's major nonfood crop, providing half of all textiles. Some 80 countries produce cotton. In the U.S. the business generates billions annually.

Most of the cotton spun and woven in U.S. mills is used for clothing but also used for book-binding, fishnets, handbags, coffee filters, lace, tents, curtains and diapers.

Cotton rag becomes stationary and paper for currency. Crystallized cottonseed oil became America's first vegetable shortening, Crisco.

The short fibers, or linters, left on the cottonseed after ginning are combined with chemicals and converted into linoleum, photographic film, dynamite, fingernail polish, and molded plastics.

Hope you all have projects to work on thru the wet weather we're having right now.

Til next time,

Carol

New Advertiser in our Newsletter—Rod & Wheel Wool & Reel

Jim and Grace Mick describe their new business venture as “a man cave and a she shed that we sell stuff out of.” Grace is a Latimer member who knits and likes to spin. She has several spinning wheels at home as well as at the shop. She finds spinning very meditative and relaxing. She has Jacob, Shetland, Border Leicester, Finn and down type fleeces which she processes by hand, to market as washed wool, combed locks, roving and handspun yarn. She will also be processing alpaca, camel, mohair, and pygora fiber. She focuses on local vendors as much as possible. She gets Merino and Merino blends from Fiber with a Twist, a small mill near St. Helens. She will also stock Romeldale fleeces and carded batts from Cedar Creek Far & Fiber in Beavercreek. Soon she will have blended cones of yarn from Yarnia in Portland.

On the Rod and Reel side of the business Grace ties fishing flies, particularly the full dress salmon and steelhead flies. Jim builds custom fishing rods. He will also refurbish and repair fishing rods upon his retirement at the end of October. They will stock a select line of fishing gear directed to the local fisheries.

The shop is located in Cloverdale right beside the big flashing Nestucca High School sign on Hwy. 101.

Winter Hours beginning September 1st

Wednesday & Saturday will be open to the public 10 am—4 pm.

Featured Consigner—Liz Winsche

When I was a child I became fascinated by rag rugs as my mother purchased many for our home from local weavers. I set a goal to be a weaver.

After I retired I joined an artist who could weave a rug in a day. I went home that day with a rug AND a good sized floor loom. I joined the Grand Rapids weavers guild and learned how to dress my loom and began weaving rugs. I used the name ReRug meaning rugs made from reused materials.

In 2011 I joined the Portland Handweavers Guild and started selling rugs at their sales. Stephanie Anderson introduced me to Latimer and I now consign rag rugs there. I also consign wool socks knit on a restored antique circular socks knitting machine. For my rugs, I buy cotton tablecloths, sheets, etc. at Goodwill and tear or cut them to size for weaving. I also use Pendleton Woolen Mills selvages, a waste product from their wool blankets. After 15 or more years I still love weaving rugs. Each rug is unique. To continue the theme, ReRug, I hem the rugs on my mothers 1939 sewing machine. It is a lot of fun.

Hurrah for our Cordelia's Knitters

Here is the picture of 145 hats and 10 scarves from our knitters. They knit for the homeless every year. It started out with Marcella Naegeli knitting 100 hats every year for the homeless. When she passed away, Cordelia's knitters picked up where she left off. This is the 3rd year the Knitters have been doing this.
