Last November, 2022, Latimer Quilt and Textile Center contacted Damascus Fiber Arts School to ask if we would like to weave tapestries based on the tools in the Latimer archive. We at Damascus said YES. Dick Park sent us photographs. Many of us got creative with our little tapestries. Here are a few of our endeavors:

A Message from our President

I find that the origins and stories of a simple color like red have always interested me with the tales they have to tell.

The rich, deep red used in textiles like quilts was originally referred to as Turkey red. The name came from Turkey red carpets, made in Turkey. The complicated dye was developed between 1650-1700. The beauty of this mordant dye was that it was dye-safe even when alizarin dye was introduced commercially in 1871.

With the good news of red becoming dye-fast, quilters were energized to use red and whites fabrics together. By the turn of the century red and white quilts were the trend. In 1880 red floss, for embroidery, also became dye-fast, ushering in the surge of red embroidery on white that we know as red work. Redwork was perfect for personalizing quilts, so quilters produced signature quilts, fundraising quilts, and conservation quilts.

Quilt patterns like Drunkard's Path, Irish Chain, and Nine Patch began to appear. Quilters started to creatively use a combination of redwork embroidery and patchwork in their quilts.

Enter the Depression era in the early 1900's and the red and white color combination spilled into the mills that produced feed sacks for women to use in clothing and quilts.

Til next time.....

Meet Our New Manager—Jennifer Lawrence

I was born and raised in Spokane Wa. My husband and I bought a fixer upper cabin in Rockaway that we have been working on since 2016. We moved fulltime in September 2022 after becoming empty nesters. We have two wonderful children who are working and going to school in Pheonix Arizona. Our favorite pastimes include crabbing and riding our electric bikes. I am also a huge Seattle Mariners baseball fan and rarely miss a game. I'm looking forward to meeting all of you.

A Challenge for You

A quick reminder that challenge entries are due December 1st. The entries in the challenge will be exhibited in our January/February show.
